

NEE

Shall scarce afford, for needful hours of rest,
A single house to their benighted guest. Addison on Italy.
NEEDFULLY. adv. [from needful.] Necessarily.

They who Dare for these poems, yet both ask and read,
And like them too; must needfully, tho' few,
Be of the best. Ben. Johnson.

NEEDFULNESS. n. f. [from needful.] Necessity.

NEEDILY. adv. [from needy.] In poverty; poorly.

NEEDINESS. n. f. [from needy.] Want; poverty.

Whereas men have many reasons to persuade; to use them all at once, weaketh them. For it argueth a neediness in every of the reasons, as if one did not trust to any of them, but fled from one to another. Bacon.

NEEDLE. n. f. [nætl, Saxon.]

1. A small instrument pointed at one end to pierce cloth, and perforated at the other to receive the thread, used in sewing.

For him you waste in tears your widow'd hours,
For him your curious needle paints the flowers. Dryden.

2. The small steel bar which in the mariners compals stands regularly north and south.

The use of the loadstone, and the mariners needle was not then known. Burnet's Theory of the Earth.

NEEDLE-FISH. n. f. [needle and fish.] A kind of sea-fish.

One rhomboidal bony scale of the needle-fish. Warton.

NEEDLEFUL. n. f. [needle and full.] As much thread as is generally put at one time in the needle.

NEEDLER. n. f. [from needle.] He who makes needles.

NEEDLEMAKER. n. f. [needle and maker.] Wicked; abominable.

NEEDLEWORK. n. f. [needle and work.]

1. The business of a sempstress.

2. Embroidery by the needle.

In needleworks and embroideries, it is more pleasing to have a lively work upon a lightsome ground, than a dark and melancholy work upon a lightsome ground. Bacon.

In a curious brede of needlework, one colour falls away by such just degrees, and another rises so insensibly, that we see the variety without being able to distinguish the total variation of the one from the first appearance of the other.

Addison's Essay on the Georgicks.

NEEDLES. adv. [from needle.] Unnecessarily; without need.

We render languages more difficult to be learnt, and need- lessly advance orthography into a troublesome art. Holder.

NEEDLESSNESS. n. f. [from needless.] Unnecessariness.

To explain any of St. Paul's Epistles, after so great a train of expositors, might seem censurable for its needlessness, did not the daily examples of pious and learned men justify
it. Locke's Essay on St. Paul's Epistles.

NEEDLESS. adj. [from need.]

1. Unnecessary; not requisite.

Their exception against needlessness, as if that did nourish ignorance, proceedeth altogether of a needless jealousy. Hook.

This sudden stab of rancour I misdoubt.

Pray God, I say, I prove a needless coward. Sha. R. III.

Would not these be great and needless abatements of their happines, if it were confined within the compas of this life only? Atterbury.

2. Not wanting; out of use.

For his weeping in the needless stream,
Poor dear, quoth he, thou mak'st a testament,
As worldlings do, giving thy sum of more
To that which had too much. Sha. As you Like it.

NEEDMENT. n. f. [from need.] Something necessary.

Behind

His scrip did hang, in which his needments he did bind.

Fairy Queen, b. i. cant. 6.

NEEDS. adv. [needy, Saxon, unwilling.] Necessarily; by compulsion; indispensably.

The general and perpetual voice of men is as the sentence of God himself; for that which all men have at all times learned, nature herself must needs have taught. Hooker.

God must needs have done the thing which they imagine was to be done. Hooker, b. iii.

I must needs after him, madam, with my letter. Sha.

Another being elected and his ambassadors returned, he would needs know the cause of his repulse in that competition.

Davies on Ireland.

I perceive

Thy mortal fight to fail: objects divine Must needs impair, and weary human sense. Milt. P. Lost.

To say the principles of nature must needs be such as our philosophy makes them, is to fet bounds to omnipotence.

Glanville, Scep. c. 25.

I have affairs below,

Which I must needs dispatch before I go. Dryden.

NEEDY. adj. [from need.] Poor; necessitous; distressed by poverty.

Their gates to all were open evermore,
And one fat waiting ever them before,
To call in comers by, that needy were and poor. Fa. 2.

— In his needy shop a tortoise hung,

NEG

An alligator stuff'd, and other skins
Of ill-shap'd fishes. Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet.

The poor and needy praise thy name. Pf. lxxiv. 21.

We bring into the world a poor needy uncertain life, short at the longest, and unquiet at the best. Templ.

Nuptials of form, of int'rest, or of state,
Those seeds of pride are fruitful in debate:

Let happy men for gen'rous love declare,
And chafe the needy virgin, chafe and fair.

To relieve the needy, and comfort the afflicted, are duties that fall in our way every day. Addison's Spect. No. 93.

NE'ER. [for never.]

It appears I am no horse,
That I can argue and discourse;

Have but two legs, and ne'er a tail. Hudibras.

To NEESE. v. n. [nyse, Danish; niezen, Dutch.] To sneeze;
to discharge flatulencies by the nose. Retained in Scotland.

He went up and stretched himself upon him; and the child neesed seven times, and opened his eyes. 2 Kings iv. 35.

By his neesings a light doth shine, and his eyes are like the eye-lids of the morning. Job xli. 18.

NEF. n. f. [old French, from navis.] The body of a church.

The church of St. Justina, designed by Palladio, is the most handsome, luminous, disencumbered building in Italy.

The long nef consists of a row of five cupola's, the cross one has on each side a single cupola deeper than the others.

Addison's Remarks on Italy.

NEFARIOUS. adj. [nefarius, Latin.] Wicked; abominable.

The most nefarius bandits, are they whom the law files incestuous bandits, which are begotten between ascendants and descendants, and between collateral, as far as the divine prohibition extends. Ayliffe's Parergon.

NEGATION. n. f. [negatio, Lat. negation, Fr.]

1. Denial; the contrary to affirmation.

Chance properly signifies, that all events called casual, among inanimate bodies, are mechanically and naturally produced according to the determinate figures, textures, and motions of those bodies, with this only negation, that those inanimate bodies are not conscious of their own operations.

Bentley.

Our assertions and negations should be yes and nay, for whatsoever is more than these is fin. Rogers, Sermon 9.

2. Description by negative.

Negation is the absence of that which does not naturally belong to the thing we are speaking of, or which has no right, obligation, or necessity to be present with it; as when we say a stone is inanimate, or blind, or deaf. Watts's Logic.

NEGATIVE. adj. [negativus, Fr. negativus, Latin.]

1. Denying; contrary to affirmative.

2. Implying only the absence of something.

There is another way of denying Christ with our mouths, which is negative, when we do not acknowledge and confess him. South's Sermon.

Consider the necessary connection that is between the ne- gative and positive part of our duty. Tillotson, Sermon 1.

3. Having the power to withhold, though not to compel.

Denying me any power of a negative voice as king, they are not ashamed to seek to deprive me of the liberty of using my reason with a good conscience. King Charles.

NEGATIVE. n. f.

1. A proposition by which something is denied.

Of negatives we have far the least certainty; and they are usually hardest, and many times impossible to be proved.

2. A particle of denial; as, not.

A purer substance is defin'd,
But by an heap of negatives combin'd;

Ask what a spirit is, you'll hear them cry,
It hath no matter, no mortality. Cleaveland's Poem.

NEGATIVELY. adv. [from negative.]

1. With denial; in the form of denial; not affirmatively.

When I asked him whether he had not drunk at all? he answered negatively. Boyle.

2. In form of speech implying the absence of something.

The fathers draw arguments from the Scripture negatively in reproof of that which is evil; Scriptures teach it not, avoid it therefore. Hooker, b. ii.

I shall shew what this image of God in man is, negatively, by shewing wherein it does not consist; and positively, by shewing wherein it does. South's Sermon.

To NEGLECT. v. a. [neglectus, Latin.]

1. To omit by carelessness.

If he neglects to hear them, tell it unto the church.

Mat. xviii. 17.

2. To treat with scornful heedlessness.

3. To postpone.

I have been long a sleeper; but I trust
My absence doth neglect no great design,
Which by my presence might have been concluded. Sh.

NEGLECT. n. f. [neglectus, Latin.]

1. Instance of inattention.

2. Careless treatment; scornful inattention.

I have

NEG

I have perceived a most faint neglect of late, which I have rather blamed as my own jealous curiosity, than as a very pretence or purpose of unkindness. Shakesf. King Lear.

3. Negligence; frequency of neglect.

Age breeds neglect in all, and actions
Remote in time, like objects

Remote in place, are not beheld at half their greatness.

4. State of being unregarded.

Rescue my poor remains from vile neglect,
With virgin honours let my herse be deck'd,
And decent emblem. Prior.

NEGLECTER. n. f. [from neglect.] One who neglects.

NEGLECTFUL. adj. [neglectus and full.]

NE'GLECTS. careles; inattentive.

Moral ideas not offering themselves to the senses, but being to be framed to the understanding, people are neglectful of a faculty they are apt to think wants nothing. Locke.

Though the Romans had no great genius for trade, yet they were not entirely neglectful of it. Arbut. on Cairns.

2. Treating with indifference.

If the father cares them when they do well, shew a cold and neglectful countenance to them upon doing ill, it will make them sensible of the difference. Locke on Education.

NEGLECTION. n. f. [from neglect.] The state of being neglect.

NEGLECTFULLY. adv. [from neglectful.] With heedless in-attention; careles indifference.

Sleeping neglectfully doth betray to loss

The conquests of our scarce cold conqueror. Shakesf.

NEGLECTIVE. adj. [from neglect.] Inattentive, or regardless of.

I wanted not probabilities sufficient to raise jealousies in any king's heart, not wholly stupid, and neglective of the publick peace. King Charles.

NEG'LIGENCE. n. f. [negligence, Fr. negligentia, Latin.]

1. Habit of omitting by heedlessness, or of acting carelessly.

2. Instance of neglect.

She let it drop by negligence.

And, to th'advantage, I being here, took't up. Shakesf.

NEG'LIGENT. adj. [negligent, Fr. negligentia, Latin.]

1. Careless; heedless; habitually inattentive.

My sons, be not now negligent; for the Lord hath chosen you to stand before him. 2 Chron. xxix. 11.

2. Careless of any particular.

We have been negligent in not hearing his voice. Bar. i. 19.

3. Scornfully regardless.

Let stubborn pride possess thee long,
And be thou negligent of fame;

With ev'ry mule to grace thy songs,
May'st thou despise a poet's name. Swift's Miscel.

NEG'LIGENTLY. adv. [from negligent.]

1. Carelessly; heedlessly; without exactness.

Infects have voluntary motion, and therefore imagination; and whereas some of the ancients have said that their motion is indeterminate, and their imagination indefinite, it is negligently observed; for ants go right forwards to their hills, and bees know the way to their hives. Bacon's Nat. Hist.

Of all our elder plays,

This and Philaster have the loudest fame;
Great are their faults, and glorious is their fame.

In both our English genius is express'd,
Lofty and bold, but negligently dress'd.

In comely figure rang'd my jewels shone,
Or negligently plac'd for thee alone. Waller.

2. With scornful inattention.

To NEGOTIATE. v. n. [negotier, French; from negotium, Latin.] To have intercourse of business; to traffick; to treat.

Have you any commission from your lord to negotiate with my face? Shakespeare's Twelfth Night.

She was a busy negotiating woman, and in her withdrawing chamber had the fortunate conspiracy for the king against king Richard been hatched. Bacon's Hen. VII.

It is a common error in negotiating; whereas men have many reasons to persuade, they strive to use them all at once, which weakeneth them.

A steward to embezzle those goods he undertakes to manage; an ambassador to betray his prince for whom he should negotiate; are crimes that double their malignity from the quality of the actors.

I can discover none of these frequent intercourses and negotiations, unless that Luther negotiated with a black boar.

Atterbury.

NEGOTIATION. n. f. [negociation, Fr. from negotiate.] Treaty of business.

Oil is slow, smooth, and solid; so are Spaniards observed to be in their motion: Though it be a question yet unresolved, whether their affected gravity and slowness in their negotia- tions have tended more to their prejudice or advantage. Hew.

NEGOTIATOR. n. f. [negociator, Fr. from negotiate.] One employed to treat with others.

Those who have defended the proceedings of our nego- tiators at Gertruydenburg, dwell much upon their zeal in endeavouring to work the French up to their demands; but say nothing to justify those demands. Swift.

NEI

NEGOTIATING. adj. [from negotiate.] Employed in negotiation.

NEGRO. n. f. [Spanish; negre, Fr.] A blackmoore.

Negras transplanted into cold and flegmatic habitations; continue their hue in themselves and their generations. Brown.

NEIF. n. f. [neif, Islandick; neif, Scottish.] Fift.

Sweet knight, I kiss thy neif. Shakesf. Hen. IV. p. ii.

To NEIGH. v. n. [hnagan, Saxon; negen, Dutch.] To utter the voice of a horse or mare.

Note a wild and wanton herd,
Or race of youthful and unhandled colts,
Fetching mad bounds, bellowing and neighing loud. Sh.

They were as fed horses, every one neighed. Jer. v. 8.

Run up the ridges of the rocks amain;
And with shrill neighings fill the neighbouring plain. Dry.

The gen'rous horse, that nobly wild,
Neighs on the hills, and dares the angry lion. Smith.

NEIGH. n. f. [from the verb.] The voice of an horse.

It is the prince of palreys; his neigh is like the bidding of a monarch, and his countenance enforces homage. Sha.

NEIGHBOUR. n. f. [nehzebu, Saxon.]

1. One who lives near to another.

He sent such an addition of foot, as he could draw out of Oxford and the neighbour garrisons. Clarendon.

2. One who lives in familiarity with another; a word of civility.

Masters, my good friends, mine honest neighbours,

Will you undo yourselves? Shakespeare's Macbeth.

3. Any thing next or near.

This man shall let me packing;

I'll lug the guts into the neighbour room. Shakespeare.

4. Intimate; confidant.

The deep revolving witty Buckingham

No more shall be the
